Welcome to our June update

- Progress continues on the Adam Smith Business School, as the team works towards the upcoming project completion and subsequent building handover.
- The building is currently undergoing testing and commissioning of installed products and systems to ensure it is ready for occupation, subject to approval from Building Control.
- The green roof is taking shape with solar panel installation and the added vegetation cover which will improve biodiversity and reduce surface water run-off during heavy rainfall events.
- Lighting installation is progressing well at the lower levels of the building, with the university having commenced the installation of audio visual equipment.

On the Adam Smith Business School:

- External hard landscaping works are continuing around the building perimeter and remain on programme to complete in early Autumn. These finishes will tie into the existing spaces and provide continuation of the high quality public realm to the Southern end of the site.
- The fit out continues to progress with the university subsequently starting with their own furniture installation in preparation for building occupation.

Project Look Ahead

- The Adam Smith Business School site team are looking to make significant progress with the internal fit out over the coming weeks, ahead of completion in a few months-time.
- Particular areas of focus will be the lower levels of the building including the main atrium as the higher levels are completed and prepared for handover.
- Testing and commissioning will continue throughout all levels as will the university's installation of furnishings.

Community Update

- The Multiplex UK Women's Network hosted an inspiring keynote talk with Olympic Gold Medallist, Eve Muirhead. Held in the ARC, Eve's talk provoked discussions around leadership, communication and pressure.
- We partnered with the Adam Smith Business School MBA cohort for a consultancy project. Students presented a business case for mental health interventions within the construction sector.
- To celebrate National Bike week, we hosted a bike servicing workshop with local business Bike for Good in St Mungo Sq. for the site team, university staff and the public.
- We had four of the team complete the Edinburgh Marathon Relay Run, raising £600 for Maggie's Cancer charity.

Environmental Update

- Earlier this month some of the Campus Development team attended Woodlands Community Garden to help with some improvement works.
- This was a great opportunity to be out in nature, learning about the garden's benefits.
